Why H. S. Stout Succeeds.

Here are a few reasons why H. S. Stout has succeeded in building up the largest tailoring business in Paris:

FIRST—He recognized the fact that five years ago that the only day of big profits and small sales was past.

SECOND—He cuts the price of tailor-made garments at least 40 PER CENT.

THIRD—He kept up the quality of his materials, his styles and his workmanship.

FOURTH—He always does as he advertised.

AS A RESULT.

As a result of this system he has built up a large trade that appreciates the fact that they save twenty dollars on a single suit or overcoat. "Many customers at a small profit rather than a few customers at a big profit," says H. S. Stout.

If you want credit, your high-price tailor gladly extends it, for he makes you pay dearly for it in the end.

Why not turn over a new leaf—wear the best, save money, by giving H. S. Stout a trial?

He makes the Finest Imported Suits for $30.00 AND $35.00.

QUIETLY ENDED.

Spanish-American War, Which Raged for Months, a Thing of the Past.

The War and Navy Departments Instruct the Commanders That the War is an End—Peace Commissioners Will Be Appointed in a Few Days.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The president has issued the following proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION:

Whereas, By a protocol concluded and signed August 12, 1898, by William R. Day, secretary of state of the United States, and his excellency, Jules Cambon, ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the republic of France at Washington, respectively representing for this purpose the government of the United States and the government of Spain, the United States and Spain have formally agreed upon the terms upon which negotiations for the establishment of peace between the two countries shall be undertaken; and

Whereas, It is in said protocol agreed that upon its conclusion and signature hostilities between the two countries shall be suspended, and that notice to that effect shall be given as soon as possible by each government to the commanders of its military and naval forces;

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, do in accordance with the stipulations of the protocol, declare and proclaim on the part of the United States, a suspension of hostilities, and do hereby command that orders be immediately given through the proper channels to the commanders of the military and naval forces of the United States to abstain from all acts inconsistent with this proclamation.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this 12th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand, eight hundred and ninety-eight, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and twenty-third.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

By the President.

WILLIAM R. DAY, Secretary of State.

A copy of the proclamation has been cabled to our army and navy commanders.

Spain will cable her commanders like instructions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The peace protocol was signed at 4:23 p.m., Friday by the representatives of Spain and the United States.

The examination of the protocol was satisfactory and the document was handed to M. Cambon first and then to Secretary Day who affixed signatures in that order to each side of the two copies. Then the last detail in making the protocol binding was administered by Assistant Secretary Cridler, in charge of the chancery work who attached the seal of the United States. Throughout the ceremony all but the two signers remained standing. M. Cambon in signing for Spain occupied the seat which Secretary of the Navy Long, now away on a vacation, usually occupied. The president stood at the left hand corner at the head of the great cabinet table. Secretary Day, M. Thiebaut and M. Cambon in the order named on the left side of the table. The rest of the party were standing in other portions of the room. No credentials were produced during the meeting at the white house the president accepting Secretary Day's assurance that this had been settled to his satisfaction at the state department. It was 4:23 o'clock when the final signatures were attached to the protocol and with the knowledge of all the officials present. This was the first time that a protocol or treaty had been signed at the white house. As this ceremony concluded, Acting Secretary Allen, of the navy, Secretary Alger and Adj. Gen. Corbin appeared, having been summoned to the white house by the president, and they were admitted into the cabinet room just in season to witness one of the most impressive features of the ceremony when the president requested the hand of the ambassador and through him returned thanks to the sister republic of France for the exercise of her good offices in bringing about peace. He also thanked the ambassador personally for the important part he has played in this matter and the latter replied in suitable terms. As a further mark of his disposition, President McKinley called for the proclamation which he had caused to be drawn up suspending hostilities and signed it in the presence of M. Cambon who expressed his appreciation of the action.

Without delay Acting Secretary Allen hastened to the telephone and directed that cable messages be immediately sent to all the naval commanders, Dewey in the Philippines, Sampson at Guantapamo, and the various commanders at navy yards and stations to cease hostilities immediately.

There is a dispatch boat at Hong Kong, and it is believed that it can reach Gen. Merritt in 48 hours at top speed. On the part of the army, while Secretary Alger availed of the telegraph, Adj. Gen. Corbin braved the storm and rushed across to the war department, where he immediately issued orders, which had been prepared in advance, to all of the military commanders to cease their operations.

The state department filled its duty by notifying all diplomatic and consular agents of the action taken.

All the formalities having been disposed of the president spent a half hour chatting with those present, and then at 4:58, the rain still continuing in force, the ambassador and his secretary entered their carriage and were driven to the embassy.

The pen which was used by Secretary Day in signing the protocol was given to Chief Clerk Michael, of the state department, who had been spoken to.

M. Thiebaut secured that used by the French ambassador.

Upon emerging from the white house Secretary Day received the earnest congratulations of the persons present upon the conclusion of the protocol. He stated that the peace commissioners who are to draw up the definitive treaty would not be appointed for several days, but declined to indicate who they would be.

As the order to military and naval commanders state further instructions will be sent to each general. Gen. Merritt will be directed to confer with the Spanish commandant at Manila to carry out the terms of the protocol, and to occupy Manila immediately. Gen. Miles will put himself in communication with the chief authority in Porto Rico for the purpose of having Spanish forces turn over San Juan and other points to him preparatory to evacuation. Owing to conditions in Cuba the orders to Gen. Shafter to be sent hereafter will be much different than those to other generals. The navy department is also preparing orders to all commanders on lines similar to the war department order.

At 12:30 o'clock the French ambassador received a dispatch giving him full authorization to sign the protocol. The dispatch was rather long and its deciphering took some time.

An official statement for press publications setting out the provisions of the peace protocol was read and approved at the cabinet session Friday.

It does not give the text of the document but details its main points and provisions. The protocol is a reiteration of the terms of the note given to Spain, with very little difference in the language of those terms, though with considerable supplementary paragraphs of an administrative nature.

The most substantial difference is in regard to the evacuation of captured territory. The note handed to Ambassador Cambon calls for immediate evacuation of Cuba and Porto Rico, while the protocol leaves the time of evacuation to be subsequently determined upon, the design being to have the date of withdrawal left to be fixed by joint military commission of the United States and Spain. The portion of the protocol supplementary to what is embodied in the note relates principally to the manner of execution of the provisions of the protocol.

The protocol provides for two commissions, first, the peace commission, which will meet in Paris, and second, the military commission, which will meet in Havana probably within 15 days. The military commission will be created immediately on the signing of the protocol. Its duties will be of great importance. It will settle the details of the evacuation of the Spanish armies from the West Indies and will decide all questions relative to the removal of submarine mines, the immediate relinquishment to the United States of the great fortresses at Havana, San Juan and other points and the transfer of possession of Manila City itself.

FIVE YOUTHFUL BANDITS.

The Reading of Yellow Backed Literature Leads Boys to Hold Up the Burlington Flyer at St. Joe.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 13.—The train robbers who held up the Burlington "flyer" two miles north of this city Wednesday night are under arrest and a weeping, crestfallen gang of bandits they are. The leader, James Hathaway, aged 17, is a Western Union messenger boy. His pals in high crime are: Charley Cook, Alonzo Otterburn, William Hathaway, brother of James, and Herbert Doniphan, ranging in age from 16 to 20 years. All are sons of respectable people. These intrepid road agents received the inspiration which enabled them to hold up an express train, terrorize the trainmen, overpower the express messenger and roll his strong box out of the car door into a wagon, from persistent reading of yellow-backed romance.

Adm. Cervera Mad at Blanco.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 13.—Adm. Cervera is stirred up over the reports of the telegrams sent to Madrid by Gen. Blanco before his defeat, accusing him of incapacity. He says he will have nothing to do with that kind of a man and that when he shall return to Spain a council will clear up everything and that he has no fears of its judgment.

An Eighty-Five-Year-Old Pedestrian.

WABASH, Ind., Aug. 13.—E. W. Harlan, a veteran of the civil war, aged 85, started on a walk from this city to Delphi on a wager. He was to make the distance, about sixty-five miles, in 72 hours, but arrived at Peru at noon, two hours ahead of time. He has plenty of money and walks for the exercise.

Three Killed and Six Injured.

RICHVIEW, Ill., Aug. 13.—A terrible accident occurred Thursday near McClure, Ill., on the Chicago & Texas railroad. A number of Italians were unloading steel rails and overbalanced a car load of rails, which was thrown upon them, killing three and seriously injuring six.

It is believed in Washington that Spain will recede from certain conditions it made and that an agreement will be had soon on the basic terms of peace.

G. A. R. MEETING.

Encampment of the Veterans of the War of the Rebellion at Cincinnati.

It Will Be Held September 5 to 10 Inclusive—The Complete Programme of Entertainment as Approved by the Citizens' Committee.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—The complete programme of the week of the National G. A. R. encampment, to be held in this city September 5-10, inclusive, was approved and made public by the Citizens' Executive committee, in charge of all arrangements. No feature of all the encampment preparations has been given more time and thought than that of entertainment, the desire being to send every visitor home happy and pleased with Cincinnati.

The Cincinnati entertainment promises to be out of the ordinary as encampment entertainments have none, by reason of the fact that the committee, under the leadership of Chairman Chas. E. Logan, has had always in mind the masses, rather than the classes. In the summary of the programme which follows, it will be observed that every feature has been arranged to permit of the veteran from the ranks, and the members of his family, enjoying all of them to the full.

A unique system has been adopted by which the free entertainment provided, will be limited to veterans and their families, though all the hundreds of thousands of visitors expected may participate with but small expense. A coupon entertainment book will be given every veteran.

Each department headquarters will be provided with a supply of these little books equal to the number of representatives in attendance upon the encampment. In these coupon books will be admission tickets to every place of amusement and entertainment in the city. No visitor will be able to take in all of them, but the tickets will be there and he can choose each day's programme to suit his own pleasure.

The week of festivities will open at 10 o'clock Monday morning with the dedication of Camp Sherman, the military quarters for the veterans desiring free quarters. A large American flag will be raised and there will be imposing ceremonies, with plenty of music. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon another flag raising will occur at the public landing under the auspices of the National Naval Veterans' association, whose members will be quartered on a fleet of steamboats at the river front. At 8 o'clock in the evening the naval veterans and ex-prisoners of war will hold a camp fire in famous Music hall, though the entertainment, including prominent speakers, war pictures, music and miscellaneous entertainment, will be under the auspices of the local entertainment committee. These constitute the formal features of the day's bill.

From Monday until Friday night there will be continuous entertainment at the many open-air resorts surrounding Cincinnati. These will all be of a different nature. Chester Park, immediately adjoining Camp Sherman, will provide vaudeville entertainment, bicycle races and features of a like nature, the park having one of the most famous bicycle tracks in the country. The Lagoon, a beautiful summer resort with a large lake surrounded by Kentucky hills, just across the river from Cincinnati, will present besides its regular attractions, a daily display of Japanese aerial fire works, a daily sham battle at 8 p.m., reproducing the capture of Manila, bombardment of Santiago and other scenes, with a continuous vaudeville performance in the large amphitheater. Coney Island, 10 miles up the Ohio river, and reached by a magnificent river ride, will present its regular attractions under the Coney Island management including a continuous vaudeville performance.

The Zoological garden, whose fame is not confined to this country, will be open daily from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., with evening concerts and general entertainment in the day.

On Tuesday at 3 p.m., the naval veterans and ex-prisoners of war will parade. Wednesday the grand parade of G. A. R. veterans will move. The start will be made at 10 a.m., signalled by the firing of a national salute of 21 guns from national headquarters at the Grand hotel. The parade will be reviewed by President McKinley and Commander-in-Chief John P. S. Gobin, now a brigadier general in the United States army of volunteers. The line of march will be entirely over level streets, and with the exception of a very small portion over asphalt. At 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, the citizens of Cincinnati will present a civic and industrial parade of large proportions, made specially attractive by a large number of historical and allegorical floats.

The camp fires on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at Music hall will be in honor of the Grand Army of the Republic, and will be of a character similar to that of Monday evening. Among the speakers expected at these camp fires are President McKinley, ex-President Harrison, Senator J. B. Foraker and many other notables. Every member of the president's cabinet, all senators and representatives, and the governors of all states will be invited to attend the encampment.

The fourth evening of the week, Thursday, will be devoted to a grand display of fireworks. In order that all may witness them without discomfort, similar displays will be made at the public landing, Eden park and at Camp Sherman. These fireworks display will be as elaborate as the mind of the designer can conceive. The city will be brilliantly lighted every evening with artistic illumination.

A point of interest to all visitors will be Fort Thomas, from which the Sixth United States Infantry went to face such terrible loss at the battle of Santiago. It is still occupied by the families of the departed regiment, and as a hospital for sick and wounded. It is one of the most beautiful spots about the hill crowned city, the view from the crest of the hill being unsurpassed. The Citizens' committee will erect a large tent at the Fort in which will be served refreshments free to all veterans and their families. Street cars leave the heart of the city every three minutes for this point.

This in the main constitutes the general features of the entertainment which will be offered the city's guests encampment week. To be sure there will be many other features, including receptions, minor camp fires and probably a grand reception to President McKinley. There will be special provisions for the care of lady visitors, including receptions, by notable citizens, and special features of entertainment yet to be provided for them.

Yellow Fever Cases to Be Isolated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Secretary Alger says that in case any of the troops from Santiago arriving at Montauk Point should have yellow fever they will be immediately isolated and no visitors permitted in their camp.

First Bale of New Cotton.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 12.—Montgomery received her first bale of new cotton Thursday. It was raised in Autauga county and will be sold at auction. The first bale last year came in August 4.

PARLIAMENT PROROGUED.

The Furtherance of Trade Relations With China Referred to by the Queen—The Spanish-American War.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Parliament was prorogued Friday. The queen's speech of prorogation contained nothing of importance on the eastern question except the following:

"The changes which have taken place in the territorial relations of the powers with the Chinese empire have induced me to conclude agreements by which the harbor of Wei-Hai-Wei and certain positions adjacent to my colony of Hong-Kong have been leased to me by the emperor of China. I trust that these arrangements will conduce to the maintenance of his independence and the security of his empire, and will be favorable to the development of the extensive commerce which is carried on between the people of Great Britain and China."

Concerning the Spanish-American war, the speech says:

"Her majesty has witnessed with the deepest sorrow the hostilities between Spain and the United States. The present negotiations give hope of an honorable and enduring peace."

GARCIA BECOMES FRIENDLY.

A Letter From Gen. Garcia to Gen. Shafter Indicates That He is Sorry for His Action at Santiago.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A special from Santiago, Cuba, to the Herald, says: Gen. Garcia, who in anger because the city after its surrender was not turned over to the Cubans severed all relations with the United States army and withdrew his troops, indicates a desire to reconsider his action in a letter that has been received by Gen. Shafter. The letter is dated at Gibara, August 5. It is in response to a request made by Gen. Miles July 19, when he was planning his expedition to Porto Rico, that Gen. Garcia detail 50 Cubans from his army to accompany the expedition as guides and scouts. In his reply Gen. Garcia said that he understood that as Gen. Miles had already sailed he supposed it would be too late to comply with his request. He stated, however, he is willing to furnish the 50 men if they still are wanted, and inclosed an order for them.

Entire Portion of Wheatland, Cal., Destroyed by Fire—A Chinaman Burned to Death—Loss $185,000.

WHEATLAND, Cal., Aug. 13.—The entire business portion of this town was destroyed by fire Friday. Only one small grocery store is left standing and there are 5,000 people, including transient hop pickers, to feed. The floating population became riotous and began plundering the town. A large force of deputy sheriffs were sworn in from among the citizens to protect the property.

Friday night two attempts were made to burn other portions of the town, leading to the belief that the fire was incendiary. One Chinese was burned to death and a number of persons were overcome by the heat. The total loss was $185,000, of which $40,000 was on grain. Insurance about half.

Sagasta Favors the Sale of the Philippines.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Sagasta is said to favor the sale of the Philippines, so as to avoid the necessity of sending more troops there, as the United States, it is believed, will only take Manila and the surrounding territory. Though there is danger of European complications over such a proposition, French officials favor it, and suggest that the United States buy the islands instead of a European power, as this would prevent complications.

President McKinley Congratulated.

AIDED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

Mrs. W. E. PAXTON, Youngtown, North Dakota, writes about her struggle to regain health after the birth of her little girl:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It is with pleasure that I add my testimony to your list, hoping that it may induce others to avail themselves of your valuable medicine.

"After the birth of my little girl, three years ago, my health was very poor. I had leucorrhoea badly, and a terrible bearing-down pain which gradually grew worse, until I could do no work. Also had headache nearly all the time, and dizzy feelings. Menstruations were very profuse, appearing every two weeks.

"I took medicine from a good doctor, but it seemed to do no good. I was becoming alarmed over my condition, when I read your advertisement in a paper. I sent at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking two-thirds of the bottle I felt so much better that I sent for two more. After using three bottles I felt as strong and well as any one.

"I think it is the best medicine for female weakness ever advertised, and recommend it to every lady I meet suffering from this trouble."

Maternity is a wonderful experience and many women approach it wholly unprepared. Childbirth under right conditions need not terrify women.

The advice of Mrs. Pinkham is freely offered to all expectant mothers, and her advice is beyond question the most valuable to be obtained. If Mrs. Paxton had written to Mrs. Pinkham before confinement she would have been saved much suffering. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Pending Establishment of Peace Our War Ships Will Be Overhauled.

They Will Be Put in the Pink of Perfection—Authorities Acting on the Principle That the Armistice Might End in Renewed Hostilities.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—With peace proclaimed all the energies of the military and naval establishments Saturday were directed into peaceful channels. The sudden change from war to peace was manifest at the war and navy departments. There was no further expectancy of dramatic developments of battles or of new campaigns. The orders given Friday night for immediate cessation of hostilities brought all military and naval movements to a halt and it now remains to bring affairs back to a peace basis.

In this, however, the authorities were acting on the theory that the protocol of Friday was but the first step towards peace, and that not until a final and lasting peace was secured could there be an entire return to a peace basis.

This was particularly true as to the navy department. In that branch it was accepted that permanent peace undoubtedly would be made, but yet instead of stripping our war ships, redistributing them into squadrons on a peace basis and returning them to their old channels, the naval authorities acted on the principle that the present armistice might end in a resumption of hostilities. For that reason the four battle ships and two armored cruisers ordered north from West Indian waters are to undergo a complete overhauling, with a view to putting them in the pink of condition. For many months they have been in tropical waters; their bottoms are foul and their engines and machinery need careful overhauling. As soon as they reach New York all work at the navy yard will be subordinated to pushing the complete overhauling of the battle ships and cruisers. Meanwhile the smaller warships in West Indian waters have been ordered to safe harbors, as the West Indian hurricane season is near at hand, while sufficient ships for police patrol are left along the Cuban and Porto Rico coasts. The big, unwieldy monitors will remain in Porto Rico, and most of the blockading fleet will center at Key West under Commodore Watson. The peace protocol will give a breathing spell and time for bringing every ship back to the highest state of perfection. The complete return to a peace basis, the establishment of peace squadrons, etc., is a matter for the future.

It is expected that the American occupation of Manila will occur immediately after the receipt by Adm. Dewey and Gen. Merritt of the orders sent them Friday night. This may not be deferred by the lack of cable facilities, as the American occupation of Manila probably will result in the opening of direct cable communication between that city and the outside world. The only difficulty thus far has been that the cable company would not recognize American control of the cable so long as our forces were not in possession of the city. The orders sent Adm. Dewey are much more specific than those sent other naval commanders, as the occupation of Manila and the holding of the bay and harbor involved more important consideration than the mere cessation of hostilities. During the early hours of Saturday the war and navy departments received no acknowledgments from the various naval and military commanders, but it was presumed that the orders suspending hostilities were being carried out in all directions.

Italy Congratulates America. WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The United States government Sunday received the first congratulations from a foreign power upon the successful termination of the war with Spain. The congratulations came from Italy through the Italian ambassador, Baron Fava. He communicated to the state department Sunday, by direction of his government, an expression of the cordial satisfaction of Italy at the prompt signature of the preliminaries of peace, together with the wish of the Italian government that, after the war, conducted with such conspicuous gallantry by the United States, this country might enjoy the benefits of peace.

NEW CONFEDERACY FORMING

Delegates From Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua Meet to Organize United States of Central America.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 26.—The delegates to the convention to form a constitution for the states of Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua continue their sessions here almost daily. The work, however, is progressing slowly. The delegates have discussed the first 11 of the articles in the printed form of a constitution which they have as a guide and have decided on the following principal features:

First—The organization to be a confederacy instead of a central union of the three states.

Second—The name of the confederation is to be "The United States of Central America."

Third—There is to be a federal district composed of the civil departments of Chinendega, in Nicaragua; Cholutra, in Honduras, and La Union, in Salvador, all bordering on the Gulf of Fonseca.

Fourth—The organizing capital is to be Amapala, on Tiger island, in the department of Cholutra, Honduras. The permanent capital is to be determined by the first congress, and will be located at either Amapala, Cholutra or Chinendega.

Fifth—There is to be one president, instead of a triple-headed tribune, as at first proposed.

In a recent session delegates from Salvador protested against what they termed "a spirit of antagonism to Salvador" in some speeches made by certain delegates from Nicaragua.

It is thought probable that either President Bonilla, of Honduras, or President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, will be chosen as the first president of the proposed confederacy.

SUMMING UP OF THE COST.

The War With Spain, Which Lasted Only 114 Days, Cost the United States the Sum of $150,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Although the war with Spain lasted only 114 days, it is estimated that it has cost the government so far $150,000,000, of which $98,000,000 has been actually paid out of the treasury. Beginning with March 1, when the first increase in expenditures in anticipation of war became apparent in the daily expenditures of the treasury, the actual disbursements on this account have been approximately as follows: March, army $600,000; navy $2,400,000; total $3,000,000; April, army $1,200,000; navy $9,800,000; total $11,000,000; May, army $12,000,000; navy $7,000,000; total $19,000,000; June, army $16,500,000; navy $6,500,000; total $23,000,000.

July, army, $29,500,000; navy, $5,500,000; total, $35,000,000; to August 13, army, $5,500,000; navy, $1,500,000; total, $7,000,000.

Total charged to war department, $65,000,000; total charged to navy department, $32,700,000; grand total, $98,000,000.

The appropriations made by congress on account of the war aggregated about $360,000,000, and cover the time to January 1, 1899.

The Peace Commissioners. WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Secretary Day, Senator Allison and Senator Gorman in all probabilities will be three of the commission, and either Joseph Choate or Elihu Root, of New York, will be appointed. Senator Davis, of Minnesota, will be offered a place on the commission, but it is expected that he will decline, and that a fifth man, not a United States senator, will be selected.

Contribution to the Conscience Fund. WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The post office department is in receipt of a letter from an unknown correspondent at Seattle, Wash., who enclosed $26.88 in order to relieve his or her conscience. The letter stated that the writer had ten years ago robbed a country post office of $15 and this amount was returned with interest at 6 per cent.

A RICH COUNTRY.

Some of the Natural Resources of the Province of Santiago de Cuba.

Maize, Yams, Sweet Potatoes and Other Vegetables Grow Everywhere With Little Cultivation—Forests of Valuable Hard Woods.

SANTIAGO, Aug. 15.—The province of Santiago de Cuba, especially that part east of a line drawn between Sagua de Tanamo, San Luis and Santiago, is today of vital interest to thousands in the United States.

The natural resources of the country and its fertility, its products and its industries are of paramount importance. The richness of the soil here, as elsewhere in the island, entitles it to consideration from an agricultural standpoint. The raising of cane and the manufacture of sugar are the chief sources of wealth in the province. In the immediate neighborhood of Santiago are many sugar estates.

Manzanillo, further westward on the south coast, boasts of many large "centrales," or central sugar estates, where the cane grown on neighboring fields is brought and grown, so many cartloads of cane being delivered against so many pounds of manufactured sugar, the grinder, or owner, of the estate making his profit out of the immense amount of cane brought him, of which he keeps a percentage or royalty. The "Colonos," or small planter, finding it to his advantage to have his cane ground on a royalty basis instead of laying out a large sum of money for machinery, etc., unwarranted by the smallness of his holding or cane crop.

Guantanamo, Santiago and Manzanillo are the three important sugar shipping ports of eastern Cuba.

Next in importance, agriculturally, come the coffee and cocoa plantations, with which Santiago province is thickly covered. Coffee and cocoa plants are generally grown on the same "finca," or plantation, the frail coffee plant requiring for its growth the shade offered by the tall and overhanging cocoa tree. The coffee shrub yields its crop in November, but, as it is not regular and uniform, three harvests are made annually, the first in November, the second in January and the third in March.

Maize, yams, sweet potatoes and other vegetables grow everywhere, with little care or supervision. In six months they bear. Coffee shrubs need the shade and these plants offer it. The result is that on most coffee plantations these vegetables are grown, which amply feed and sustain the planter, who after six months is on a self-sustaining basis, with a goodly coffee crop ahead as clean profit.

Tobacco is grown extensively at Palma Soriano, San Luis, Paire, Jiguanay and Guica, most of which has hitherto been shipped to Germany, the balance to the Spanish regime. Guica produces the best leaf, although, of course, of an inferior grade as compared with Vuelta and Partidos tobacco.

The woods and forests of eastern Cuba abound in every variety of hard woods, the principal being mahogany, cedar, rosewood and "majagua," a wood known the world over as the strongest and most durable of all woods, of a greenish ashy hue and an exceedingly close grain. Most of them, in fact nine-tenths of the woodlands are virgin forests which it would take years and years to decimate and which have so far escaped the destructive hand of man owing to the lack of transportation facilities to the seacoast.

The "Yaya," or lancetshar, grows by the thousand acres, and so does the lignum vitae, so much sought after for the manufacture of block sheaves and of heavy balls used in bowling alleys.

Palm leaf in great quantities is exported to Europe and the United States for the manufacture of hats, and "palmetto" finds a ready market abroad for the manufacture of oil.

Honey and beeswax are other very important articles of export, and modern hives on the plan of the French and Dutch hives would amply repay the investment.

Next in importance to its agricultural products, Santiago de Cuba's iron and manganese mines demand universal attention. As is well known the Santiago ore, with its low percentage of phosphorous ranks, together with the Swedish and the Spanish Demerara mineral as the "crack ore" of the world.

With a wealth of natural resources, rich in agricultural and mineral soil, Santiago de Cuba only awaits American brains, enterprise and capital to make it one of the richest, as well as one of the most beautiful, spots in the world.

The News at Hong Kong. HONG KONG, Aug. 15.—News of the cessation of hostilities between the United States and Spain was received here Saturday. The British steamer Australian, bound for Sydney, N. S. W., was chartered to carry the news to Manila. No other vessel was available for the purpose owing to the prevalence of typhoons.

Lee Mentioned for Military Governor. RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 15.—It is believed here that Gen. Fitzhugh Lee will be military governor of Cuba.

SPAIN SQUARING HERSELF.

The Government Tells the People in a Note That the Spanish Army Has Not Been Conquered.

MADRID, Aug. 13.—The question of the acceptance of the protocol having been finally settled and its signature explicitly and definitely authorized, the government is now considering the domestic situation for the best means of allaying the excitement and propagating the idea that Spain's surrender is not so complete as indicated by the bold terms of the protocol. As the first step in this direction a semi-official note has been issued.

It is as follows: The government is of opinion that the most critical period of the peace negotiations has now arrived, as it depends upon the arrangement of details as to whether the peace will be more or less advantageous. Spain wishes to preserve her sovereignty over the whole of the Philippines, to which she proposes to accord all political and administrative reforms consistent with the maintenance of her sovereignty.

In regard to the evacuation of Cuba and Porto Rico, it will be asked that the army be allowed to depart honorably and that assurance be given guaranteeing that Spanish and foreign interests will not suffer. The army which has not been conquered will return to Spain with its guns, arms and munitions.

In regard to the Cuban debt, as the United States refuses to assume it, Spain will endeavor to arrange with the Cuban treasury to pay it when the island is able.

The question of a treaty of commerce will lead to considerable discussion and the matter will be submitted to a commission of diplomatists under the presidency of Senor Castillo.

The Liberal thinks the only bright feature of the peace treaty is the immediate suspension of hostilities, "so that our unhappy soldiers will no longer have to die without knowing wherefore."

Continuing, the Liberal congratulates the country upon the fact that the war is ended, though Spanish rule in America is completely terminated. "We reserve the right to criticize the protocol when freedom is restored to the press."

In conclusion the Liberal says: "Those who pretend that the events of the last three years were simply accidents which do not affect Spanish history are deceiving themselves."

A NAVAL OFFICER EXPIRES.

Rr. Adm. Kirkland, Commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard—A Short Sketch of His Life.

VALLEJO, Cal., Aug. 13.—Rr. Adm. Kirkland, commandant of the Mare Island navy yard, died Friday evening.

The funeral will take place from St. Vincent Catholic church of Vallejo on Sunday. The remains have been embalmed and will be placed temporarily in the vault at St. Vincent's cemetery. Later they will be removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., for interment beside the remains of his daughter, who is buried there.

Rr. Adm. W. A. Kirkland was appointed from North Carolina July 2, 1850; made a midshipman June 30, 1853; lieutenant, March 18, 1859; lieutenant commander, July 16, 1862; commander, March 2, 1869; captain, April 1, 1880; commodore, June 27, 1893, and rear admiral, March 1, 1895.

He would have been placed on the retired list on the 2d of 1st month were it not for the present war. He had been anxious to retire from active duty, as he had purchased a home at San Diego, where he had intended to make his home when placed on the retired list.

He served at sea for eight months as rear admiral; total sea service 23 years and nine months; shore or other duty 16 years and eight months. At the time of his death he was commandant of the Mare Island navy yard. He was well known on the Pacific coast and popular among both naval officers and civilians.

Ate Poisoned Candy. DOVER, Del., Aug. 13.—Mrs. J. Pol Deane, of this place, is dead, and her sister, Mrs. J. P. Dunning, is seriously ill, the result of poisoning from eating candy. Mrs. Dunning is the wife of J. Preston Dunning, the well known Associated Press correspondent now in Porto Rico, and both women are daughters of ex-Congressman John B. Pennington. The candy came through the mails on Wednesday. The postmark on the box was unintelligible, but it is supposed by Mrs. Dunning to have been sent by a lady friend in San Francisco named Craven.

Garcia's Men to Go Home for Thirty Days. NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A Santiago special to the Evening World says: Jack York, of Pennsylvania, who has been serving with Garcia, the Cuban general, has just arrived here. He reports that Garcia has suspended operations for 30 days, and given his men permission to go home, with instructions to report to him at the end of that period.

Raising of the Stars and Stripes Over Hawaii. HONOLULU, Aug. 4, via Victoria, B. C., Aug. 13.—The United States ship Philadelphia arrived here Thursday, six days and 20 hours from San Francisco, with Adm. Miller and staff on board, who came for the purpose of raising the American flag over the Hawaiian Islands. A conference with the Hawaiian government was held Friday afternoon. It is generally understood that the flag will not be raised until the commissioners arrive on the 17th inst.

VERY QUIET DAY.

The White House and Army and Navy Assume Usual Sunday Quietude.

The Most Serious Problem Before the Peace Commission Will Be the Philippines—Administration Giving It Close Attention.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The white house, the war department and the navy department Sunday resumed their usual Sunday quietude, a condition which has not prevailed since the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, February 15. Secretary Alger was at the department a few minutes, and also went to the white house, but did not remain long. Gen. Corbin came to his office during the day and looked over his dispatches, but did not remain constantly on duty as he has been doing. There were a few clerks about the departments, but scarcely a Sunday passes in peace times that this does not happen. The busy war-like attitude has entirely disappeared and Washington has settled down to a peace basis.

The president believes that the most serious problem which the peace commission will be called upon to deal with is the Philippines. Before the commission assembles it is hoped the affairs of Cuba and Porto Rico will be found in such process of adjustment as to leave little for the commission to consider under that head. The absolute relinquishment by Spain of all sovereignty over the islands in the West Indies will allow only the property questions to be settled between the governments, that is what Spain shall take away and what shall remain as captures of war and the protection of Spanish subjects and their property in the islands. The greater questions growing out of the war as relating to Cuba and Porto Rico will have to be dealt with by the United States alone. The fact that the Philippines will present the difficult problem in the peace negotiations has caused the administration to give it a great deal of careful attention. Several suggestions have been made as to what shall be done, one being the retention of the Bay City and harbor of Manila, just what the protocol gives temporarily.

Another is that Subig bay and a sufficient amount of territory for a naval and coaling station be secured and the building up of an American city at that place begun. Still another idea, which is being considered is the retention of the Island of Luzon, the advocates of that plan believing that there would be trouble between the governments which occupied a portion of the island with a line of demarcation, such as would exist in case Manila and the bay only was retained. The Island of Luzon is the largest of the group and contains about 3,000,000 people, which are said to be the better class in the Philippines. It is believed, however, that the administration and the commission will be greatly influenced by the reports which Adm. Dewey and Gen. Merritt will make on the subject. Their reports are expected before the commission meets.

The final determination as to the government of Porto Rico and the settlement of the government of Cuba are problems for settlement, but the impression prevails that these islands will become quite rapidly Americanized, and every encouragement for them to do so will be given. Porto Rico will be under military control for the present. Cuba also will be similarly governed, but it is probable that American reforms in the matter of government will be such that the people of Cuba will see the advantage of becoming annexed to the United States. It is thought the sanitary improvement of Havana and other cities, the management of the municipalities and liberality offered the country people will be of such a character as soon to convince the people that the changed conditions are for their good.

There has been little doubt about soon settling the transfer of Porto Rico and the reception which the American troops have received in that island is a justification for the belief. Porto Rico will be treated at once as an American possession. The first movement in this direction will be the sending of a delegation of officials from the post office department to investigate and report upon the mail facilities there now and to make such recommendations as they determine upon. Mail routes, methods of transportation and the conditions of post offices generally in the island will be examined. Military post offices will be established at once wherever troops are stationed, and at such other points as may be demanded by the interests of Americans and the people of the islands, if the present offices are not available.

Gen. Shafter's Command. WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—By Wednesday or Thursday of this week it is expected by the war department officials that all of Gen. Shafter's command will have left Santiago for the United States.

Cholera Epidemic at Madras. MADRAS, Aug. 15.—The cholera epidemic is here. Between Monday morning and Friday night there were 55 deaths from the disease, the fatalities prior to the day first mentioned having been 117.

A TEST OF LOVE.

[Walter Champ in Up-To-Date.]

I.
Moonbeams glimmered over and around Alfred Answorth and Gertrude Greenwood on the piazza. They sat so close that the moonlight could not come between them. No sound was audible save the twin heart throbs.

At last he spoke.
"There is but one thing that prevents our union. 'Tis passing strange that the Fates could be so blind as to balk one's happiness." Then he sighed.

II.
Gertrude Greenwood quickly raised her head from his shoulder, and smoothed her hair. In tones expressing loyalty and truth she said, "Impossible, Herbert! Nothing could come between us."

Herbert was deep in meditation. "Name the obstacle," cried the maid, and I will make any sacrifice for your sake."

Howard spoke. "Alas," he said, "you are a strawberry blonde, and my ideal is a brunette."

III.
Gertrude Greenwood's head rested contentedly in its former place, and her heart resumed business in its normal gait. Looking into his eyes she murmured earnestly, "Herbert, I am willing even to dye for you."

Private Isaac Alexander, of Company I, has been detailed for Hospital duty.

The members of the Second Kentucky believe that they will spend the Winter at Chickamauga, and are becoming resigned to their fate.

Second Lieutenant Neville C. Fisher, of Company I, of Paris, has resigned, and Color Sergeant Charlton Alexander will probably be appointed by Col. Gaither to succeed him.

Privates Desha Lucas, John M. Clay and G. Wright, of Company I, have applied for sick furloughs, and will probably leave this week for Paris to recuperate. Sergeant Dorsey Ray left Saturday night, for Paris on a five days furlough.

The Second Kentucky Regiment is not yet fully equipped, through the negligence of somebody. Some of the recruits who went out for target practice the other day were barefooted, and their clothing is very scant. Some one has it in good and strong for the Second Kentucky.

War Revenue Law Rulings.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Scott has rendered several more decisions to clear points which were obscure in the war revenue law.

It is ruled that all county fairs must pay a license of $10 when they include horse racing as one of their attractions. Every sideshow must pay a tax of $10 also when they charge for admission. In case the fair pays $100 all the sideshows go untaxed.

Probate Court papers, such as letters of an administration, guardianship papers, etc.—all except bonds—are exempt from tax.

No stamp is required on a certificate of a tax sale nor on a certificate of redemption.

Stamps are not required on ordinary rent receipts. But when words or phrases occur in such receipts that can be construed as a contract the receipt must be stamped.

When an insurance company reinsures another company no tax is required if the second insurer receives only its proportionate part of the premium.

Deeds to graveyard lots for burial purposes do not have to be stamped.

A deed to cure a defect in a deed must be stamped according to the true value of the property.

Deeds of gift from a husband to wife or other relative must be stamped according to the true value of the property.

Elocutionary exhibitions given for church, Sunday school or public charity are not taxed. Otherwise a license of $10 a year must be paid.

Insurance policies given as security must be stamped for the amount of the loan, irrespective of the policy value.

A Fleishy Consumptive

Did you ever see one?
Did you ever hear of one?
Most certainly not. Consumption is a disease that invariably causes loss of flesh.

If you are light in weight, even if your cough is only a slight one, you should certainly take of cod liver oil with hypophosphites. No remedy is such a perfect preventive to consumption. Just the moment your throat begins to weaken and you find you are losing flesh, you should begin to take it. And no other remedy has cured so many cases of consumption. Unless you are far advanced with this disease, Scott's Emulsion will hold every inducement to you for a perfect cure.

Hark, hark, the nights are dark,

George Curzon has been appointed by Queen Victoria as Viceroy of India, and his American wife, who was Miss Leiter, of Chicago, is now the leading lady of all Indian society, and is the next representative of Queen Victoria, who is empress of India. It is an admitted fact that the choice of Curzon for Viceroy has been guided largely by the fitness of his wife to bear the great burden of responsibility that will be laid upon her. With the exception of the wives of the Presidents of the United States no American woman was ever called to a position of greater social and political significance.

The latest decisions of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, relating to taxation of shows, theaters and circuses, are pleasing to the proprietors of combinations as it states they are exempt from paying any tax except under conditions out of the ordinary. The ruling received at Louisville Saturday by Collector Sapp says that the proprietor of a theatrical company traveling over the country giving exhibitions in halls known commonly as theaters, the proprietors or lessees of which have paid special tax. It is held, however, that if the company plays in any other than theaters paying special tax, the company must pay the special tax of $10 per annum, or at that rate.

Oh, the Pain of Rheumatism!

Rheumatism often causes the most intense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases.

A few years ago I was taken with inflammatory Rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physicians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slightest relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grow worse, the disease spread over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try

S. S. S. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of potash or mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

Slain at Cynthiana

George Lannon, a Paris negro, who went to Cynthiana Friday to attend a colored picnic, walked into a restaurant in that city and without provocation shot and killed "Doc" Caldwell, a medicine seller, who formerly lived in this city. The murderer, with pistol in hand, ran down the railroad track to the river, defying arrest. R. C. Wickliffe procured a shotgun and overtook Lannon, got the drop on him and marched him back to jail. Witnesses state that the murder was entirely without provocation, and the indications are that Lannon may be jerked into king dom come by the Sheriff of Harrison.

Attempted Burglaries.

Sunday night sneak thieves entered the residence of G. W. Myers, on Mt. Airy avenue, and ransacked the drawers of a dresser in an upstairs room, but were scared away before they secured anything.

Thieves again attempted to burglarize the residence of J. K. Spears, on Seventh street, the other night, but were shot fired by "Son" Roche, who is sleeping in the house, scared them away.

An attempt was also made the other night to break into the home of Officer J. C. Elgin.

A Successful Meeting.

THE camp meeting which closed at Parks Hill yesterday was the most successful one held there for a number of years. The L. & N. carried 3,100 people to the camp grounds, 800 being from Carlisle, 388 from Paris, and 250 from Maysville.

A TALK WITH THE HUSBAND.

He Should Remember the Claims of His Wife Upon His Kindness and Consideration.

"I am tired at the close of the day. 'tis true, but I always try to remember that my wife may be as tired as myself." Oh, if all husbands would not only think of this, but act upon it, how many weary women would smile, and feel half their burdens drop at once from their shoulders! It is such a little thing to recognize this fact by a word, a look, if no more. Because a man is "tired," he need not be indifferent or cross. But, alas! when he comes home, and finds everything prepared for his comfort, he too often accepts it as his due, as a matter of course, and never thinks of the worrying detail which has occupied so much time in bringing it about. He never thinks how inexpressibly "tired" his wife is of it all, though she may be too much of a woman to shirk it; or what despair seizes her soul when, after having eaten and drunk all he is capable of, satisfied snores from the corner of the sofa announce the usual programme until bedtime; or, lacking this, a total silence and absence of mind, which is just as discouraging as to results. Sunday, too—then, at least, when there is, or should be, no "business"—when a husband should do his part towards making that day social and bright, how often does he retire to his room, that he may spend his time reading and smoking alone; appearing to his family only to feed, after that going to sleep.

No wonder the wives of such men get discouraged. No wonder they say: as they often do: "What is life worth if my husband only values me as a housekeeper, and worse still, one without a salary—when, after all my unrecognized services, I have the mortification of asking every time I need money, as if I were a beggar, soliciting charity?" "Tired?" Does he not talk with animation enough if a friend drops in? Now gentlemen, if you could hear women talk together you would know this is no fancy picture; and we maintain this is wholly wrong on your part. If you won't go out with your wives to seek agreeable company or relaxation, you are certainly bound to be social and agreeable at home—bound by your marriage promises—bound by your wife's performing her duty with regard to your food and other comforts—bound by your little children, who see their mother's sad, weary face, and involuntarily catch her trick of sighing. Be but half as agreeable at home as you take pains to be abroad, and you will find it as good a little business investment as ever you made.—N. Y. Ledger.

PADDY DOLAN GETS A BATH.

A Sportive Irishman's Severe Punishment for Stoning a Baby Elephant.

It was the day of "the greatest show on earth," the "Eleven Elephant Show," and all the little ragamuffins in town had followed the circus wagons from far to show ground, and from there to the river, where the elephants were to be given the unusual treat of a bath; or rather the chance to bathe themselves and one another.

The small boys of the place spent most of their summer days in "going in" also; but among them was one little pug-nosed, freckled-faced fellow—Paddy Dolan, by name—who could neither be coaxed nor driven into the water.

Paddy was the most mischievous, as well as the dirtiest, of them all, and no sooner had the great creatures from the circus entered the water and begun to enjoy their clumsy gambols, with loud trumpeting and the dashing of fountains of water over one another, than Paddy stationed himself on the edge of the bank and began to throw stones and unkind remarks at them.

The elephants, whose drab velvet coats had been changed to black satin by the water, were at first too happy to be teased, but their keeper, who had walked beside the baby elephant to the river, carrying in his arms the great milk bottle from which she took her dinner, warned Paddy not to hit the baby, as the mother elephant, Beatrice, was very cross.

Paddy foolishly kept on, and soon a stone struck the baby, and before the boy could make his escape the mother, with a yell of rage, had seized him in her trunk and taken him out into the middle of the river.

The crowd was silent with horror, expecting to see poor Paddy dashed to pieces or his life trampled out by the herd. But no, the others all stood back, and let Mme. Beatrice punish as she would.

She dipped the struggling, howling Paddy many times into the water, then taking him to where the baby stood she used him as a brush, or sort of wash rag, on his fat back and sides.

Then, while everyone screamed with laughter, she threw Paddy on the bank a sadder, wiser and cleaner boy, and there a chorus of voices greeted him, crying:

"Paddy went in! Paddy Dolan went in!"—Little Men and Women.

Raspberry Ice.

For a raspberry sorbet boil together a pint of sugar and a pint of water for ten minutes. Put two quarts of raspberries well washed in a pan and pour the hot sirup over them. Let them boil up once, then remove from the fire and strain. Add the juice of two lemons and freeze for eight or ten minutes.—Boston Budget.

THE TRUE WOMAN.

The woman who holds a man's heart in her hands
Need not be pretty nor possessed of rich lands,
She needn't wear clothes just teeming with style;
She needn't possess the first worldly wife,
Her eyes may be brown, her eyes may be blue,
To him she's a beauty away through and through—
If she's true.

It's her soul that he cares for, her steadfast devotion,
Her love as unbounded, as free as the ocean;
The touch of her hands, the glance of her eye,
The swift rush of color that comes when he's high;
The thousand and one little things she can do
That show him so plainly right through and through
That she's true.

What does it matter if others are fairer?
She possesses a virtue that makes her far rarer
Than professional beauties, cold-hearted and vain.
She would give him her all and care not to gain
Aught but a smile, a low "I love you,"
Which thrills her whole being away through—
For she's true.

Days may be dark, days may be fair,
In sickness, in health, in joy, in despair,
She proves in each crisis that her love is real;
It shines on serenely, come woe or weal.
The world counts for nothing, what can it do
If she belongs to him utterly all through
And is true?

IV.—CONTINUED.

"Does the lady wear number nines," says I, "an' does she smoke the Seal of North Carolina?" And I give her a wink.

"G'long," says she; "for what do you take me?"

"For somebody's darling," says I, "and for nobody's fool." And I axed her which av her frin's was wantin' Jack Darcie.

"Do you think," says she, confidential-like, "that if the boys did want him they couldn't get him?"

"Well," says I, "him an' me is workin' pardners; wha they want him they can have Mike, too. We goes by pairs, like the cap and the fuse; if ye meddle wid wan, ye'll likely hear from the other."

"Thin she laughed. 'Do you go sparkin' in pairs?' says she. 'For I think the lady business is not in wid the two av ye.'"

"Mike, what are you giving me now?" said Darcie, sternly.

"It's God's tru' I'm givin' ye, in the very words av her mouth—and maybe there was a kiss or two trown in, but that's not for me to mention. I bring the word straight as she gey it me."

"What is the word? Who does it come from?"

"It comes from the parlor at the Big Horn by the way av the kitchen, which is not always the safest way, thinks I, but that's no business av mine. And whin I chaffed her about the 'lady,' she answered me plain, lookin' me in the eye.

"You'd better not be monkeyin' wid this message," says she, "there's more in it than you know. And if he thinks we're puttin' up a game on him, tell him this: The word is from her he called the Mountain Lily."

"Mike," said Darcie, flushing, "I don't know what to make of this. Are you all right, old man—honor bright? How many friends did you meet down at Pegleg's saloon?"

"I'm as straight as a string," Mike answered. "Ye know well enough I have no truck wid any o' that crowd. Faith, 'twould be as much as my life is worth to be seen in town wid a jag on. By the cross—and I niver take me oath on that but I tell'm the tru'—I'm givin' ye the very words; and where she got them how should I know? Mabby you know yourself who's your lily?"

"Where did you say I was to meet her?"

"In a quare place entirely, yet not so othandy to the mine. On the fringe o' the tamaracks, up the gulch, where ye river will meet wid a soul, passin' up or down; and by token, there's a big, lone cedar standin' in a bit av a clearin'.

If ye go there to pluck lilies, I'm wid ye, Darcie dear."

"Go along with your blarney! When did she say I was to be there?"

"The hour is the quarest av all; be-echune half after tin and eleven o'clock next Chuesday night. 'An unwholesome hour,' says I, 'and a great wish she must have for him, to be pacin' the woods at that hour!'

"'Hut!' says she, 'don't you be scared. It'll all be proper, for she'll have me wid her.'

"Thin I'll be there, darlin', says I. 'You may bet on me. But me own notion av that meetin' is that we'll smell gowdher before we'll get so much as a scent av the lily.' And she tossed her head.

"'I'll tell the lady he's afraid to come widout little Mike to protect him.' 'I dunno f'wat he'll be,' says I. 'nor where he'll be next Chuesday night; but where he is, little Mike will be. And don't fail me,' says I, 'for the joys av life is fadin' on me.'"

"Mike, you've ruined me! It's like your blazin' impudence to answer my messages for me. You will go straight back to your girl, whoever she is, and get another kiss, and tell her I'll be there if I'm alive and can get there; and you will not be with me!"

"I wouldn't put me fut on that road again to-night for the kiss av peace in Paradise," Mike drawled.

"Then I must go myself. Are you sick? Are you afraid? What's the matter with you?" shouted Darcie.

"I'm thinkin' what size boots the Mountain Lily wears. I bet she wears thirteens, and the print av her fut is studded wid nails."

V.

A CUP OF TEA.

Mr. Frederick Bingham, of the Big Horn mine, was the detrimental member of an old New York family, far too proud and united to be willing to own to the world that it had failed in the person of its eldest son. Therefore his brothers, sagacious, responsible men, and conscientious, for the most part, in the use of their name, had never questioned but it was their right to use it for Fred—to repair his mistakes, and cover up his failures, and procure him another chance; and for years, with constant devotion to the private before the public obligation, to sentiment before principle, they had saddled the family problem, in the person of their unremunerative brother, upon one hopeful young enterprise after another of the broad and charitable west.

His little daughter's letters followed him, from this remote mining camp, or cattle station, to the next one, inclosed in long, fluent, circumstantial epistles from her aunts, explaining and apologizing concerning matters relating to the child to which he had never given a thought, or had forgotten all about. These he glanced over and smiled at, and often did not trouble himself to read. After a time his brothers were informed, in dignified phrases, that he had "resigned" from the disappointing affairs of the new scheme which he had last had in charge, and he presently returned, and was on their hands once more; a little older and fatter, a little harder in the expression and looser in the structure of the face, and a trifle less sure of himself in the company to which he was bred; and his sisters winced and blushed at his free comments upon themselves, the life of the home and of the east, as it appeared to him after an interval of absence; and his mother wistfully took note of her boy's gray hairs and his old, tired, unspirited appearance, but would not discuss him or hear him criticised; and his brothers pointedly requested him to pay a visit to their tailor, and they sometimes forgot to mention to mutual dinner-giving friends that Fred was in town. Yet they thought he might be presentable enough, according to western standards. He had, at his best, a good manner, a trifle out of date, to be sure; he had the indurate remains of an expensive education; he drank too much, undoubtedly, though that was not an exceptional failing with the men of their set. They did not conceive the manner of his drinking when he was at his lonely posts of unwatched responsibility; how he drank alone, and continued idiotically replenishing; in solitary boredom; how he drank with his inferiors lest they should think him proud, and with his superiors, of course, because at an isolated mine the manager's "boys" are his sole companions and sometimes better-bred men than himself; nor the perilous stuff that a man drinks, at those altitudes, who is careless of himself. These things the mother's heart divined, shrinkingly, without a question or a fact. But the prosperous eastern brothers, sensible of the continental scope and importance of their own affairs, thought that a second-rate man might do well enough for such places as they sought for Fred. It could not be expected that first-class men would be willing to exile themselves to holes and corners of the earth, at any price. So the good name, and the good manner that was not quite up to date, and the family influence, were in requisition once more to cover up the inner facts of Fred's latest failure (what the facts were his brothers hardly knew, and they had not been very particular in their inquiries), and he was passed on, like a counterfeit coin, to his next opportunity, at some other person's expense.

Of late years friends of the family had hesitated to ask: "What is Fred doing now?" He changed his occupation so often—or it seemed often to persons who thought of him only once in three or four years; and they said to one another: "What a mercy that he has never married again!" and they bethought them that they must "do something" for that pretty creature, his daughter, and perhaps were a trifle relieved, on casting up her years, to remember that she could not be more than a schoolgirl, and there was plenty of time. And her aunts were such very sensible women—no doubt they were bringing her up to a fit sense of what her father's daughter might have to look forward to; which they were not doing at all, but were petting her, and making as much ado over the child as if all the good fairies had met at her christening. They were not even attempting to revise her innocent impressions of a parent known to her chiefly through his munificence in gifts and pocket-money. Her aunts never told her of the carelessness that went with the munificence; of the lapses, when there were no remittances even for shoes and school-bills; nor how often their own private means had been drawn upon, to spare the little inheritance that they held in trust from their sister to her child. This money, they were resolved, should not be touched, neither principal nor interest, while they were its custodians; and in this way alone they showed their prudence. For why should she need to know, poor child, what the world said of her father? They themselves did not pretend to know or to judge him, but always, for the sake of their sister who had known him and had been silent to the last, they too were silent. What the child's own mother would never have told her, they believed that they, who stood in the mother's place, had no right to tell her.

When at last they were startled by their brother-in-law's unexpected demand that his daughter should follow him into the far west, they knew not what to say. They had no objections that they could dare to offer now. They had no rights in the child herself, that they could set against the right of a father; and Faith, as any girl would be, was wild to go. They watched and prayed, feeling as if some unhallowed bargain, transacted long ago, in which an unconscious life was the innocent forfeit, had been fatally foreclosed. And they had made no effort to prepare the girl for whatever surprises, or shocks, or ordeals, this foreclosure involved. They could not have said just what it was that they feared—simply they did not trust the man, her father, and they greatly feared the life to which he was taking her. But they never questioned that she must go.

Those gentle, unassertive, maiden mothers who, with more than maternal unselfishness, had fulfilled every duty and made every sacrifice for their sister's child, yielded her up to the natural life, and every one said that it was well done. A few outspoken old gentlemen who had no daughters of their own, and one or two defrauded young ones, declared it was a shame; but the wives and mothers generally said that it was the right place for Faith; all the more if, as was hinted, her father was not in all respects just what he should be. So, with no more preparation for the experience before her than girls have who go to the altar with men they are expected to reform, Faith had journeyed blithely westward, to cast in her life, in the somber solitude of the Big Horn, with that of the dull, hard, careless, coarse old man on whom her instinct had conferred every grace and dignity of fatherhood.

And now, with her first trouble, her woman's defensive strength of silence came to her, and her letters to her aunts were models of pious deception. To one person only had she uttered a word of all her heart's shame and indignation, and that one, as she remembered with a burning face, had been all too ready to listen.

At the Big Horn mine on Tuesday night, there were indications that the manager was expecting guests to dinner. He had put on his senatorial black frock suit, a white stiff shirt, and a light tie, with a large diamond sparkling on the full-blown folds of silk. Faith was reluctantly in the most reserved of her simple, dainty dinner dresses. Her simplicity annoyed her father. He would have had her come before him like Esther before the king. The table was set for six persons, and there were three wine glasses at each plate. There were no flowers, nor any little feminine touches about the rooms, to show that the fair daughter of the house had taken either pride or pleasure in preparing for her father's guests; nor was there in her face any of the brightness of happy expectancy.

Mr. Bingham was reading in the library off the dining-room, when Faith entered by the curtain-draped door, which half revealed the table, aglow with candles and gleaming with glass and silver. The manager was a luxurious provider; he loved that his household should fare sumptuously and dress bravely, and he was not behind in setting a prosperous example.

"Father, may I speak to you about something?"

Mr. Bingham turned to his daughter with a slightly forced look of amiable interest. "Certainly, my dear. Nothing unpleasant, I hope."

"Oh, yes; it is unpleasant. It is about Abby. I wish you would tell me what she did do before I came. I can never ask her to do a thing but she is perfectly amazed. She says she never waited on tables when you gave dinners—never!"

"Oh, yes, she did, but—she needn't say I said so. She makes a distinction in her own mind, very likely, between waiting on men—who are supposed to be helpless creatures, anyway—and waiting when a lady sits at table and gives orders. You haven't struck her right, that's all."

"Why, father, I cannot speak to her! I positively cringe to her, now. She has the most extraordinary manners! If I meet her she never steps aside; she pushes ahead, and I simply retire to avoid a collision. She goes out and in at the front door, and sits on the front porch; she doesn't think of rising if I happen to come out—she doesn't see me. She answers the bell or not, as she pleases. I have opened the door, myself, to men who have asked if 'Miss Steers' was in, evidently expecting that I should call her; which I did! I thought it a joke at first—the country and the way we live. But it's getting past a joke. To-night, with four men to dinner, I took it for granted that she proposed to make herself useful. I didn't ask her to wait on table; I thought it safer to assume that she would condescend that much. But I gave her a few hints which she certainly needed—I was as pleasant and as careful as I could be—and she flew up in a perfect rage. I was obliged to leave the room."

"Now, what are we to do? You know what a scramble it is when Wan has to come in; he has all he can possibly do with his dinner. I would wait on table myself, but, father, for your sake, I can't do such things with Abby in the house. Send her away, and I will do her work—I almost do it now—but I cannot do it, for your own sake, father, so conspicuously."

"In Heaven's name, who has asked you to do Abby's work? Do you suppose I want my daughter to do the work of the house?"

"Your daughter does a good deal of it. I don't know whose work it is, or who is mistress here; that is what troubles me, father. I spoke to Abby one day about something that wasn't quite right in my bedroom; since then she has never entered the room. I do it myself, or I did, until Wan saw me, and took the work out of my hands. What did Abby do, before I came?"

"Well, she pretty much ran the house, that is a fact, and I was too lazy to keep her in order. I'm too lazy to discharge her now."

"They are all pretty much of a muchness," Mr. Bingham expatiated, uncomfortably. "They all make a point, the American ones, of sitting at meals with you, or being asked to. If you had thought to ask Abby to sit down with you to luncheon, sometimes, when you were alone, that would have made it all right. Now she thinks you set yourself above her, which the more you are the less she'll acknowledge it, of course. She's on her ear, now, about some trifle. I suspect you are a bit too particular about trifles. Young housekeepers are apt to be. I know she slams around the house as if she'd been brought up in a boiler-shop, but she has her good points. You'll get used to her."

"There seems to be no question of her getting used to me," said Faith, with rising temper. "If she makes any distinction at all between us, it's entirely in favor of herself. And, father, I'm ashamed to have such a looking woman about the house, so frightfully dressed, and so made up. Why, she doesn't look respectable!"

Mr. Bingham smiled a sickly smile. "Oh, well, that's her little privilege, to fix herself up to suit herself. I don't admire all that powder and paint, but she does, and it's her own face."

"But there are such nice-looking girls at Wallace's," Faith pleaded. "You've never tried anybody but Abby, have you? She has been here too long, and it's hard for me to begin with a woman who has never had a mistress—so she gives me to understand. Of course we can't discuss it to-night, but do think about it, father."

Mr. Bingham promised to think about it. As Faith closed the door, he took up his newspaper with a sigh, but threw it down again emphatically on hearing the brassy tones of Abby, talking loudly as she entered the dining-room by way of the back hall. Mr. Bingham got upon his feet, and fled from the wrath to come.

"He was in here. I heard them talking. I bet they were talking me over. Perhaps he's stepped into her room. Set down, and I'll see," Miss Steers said briskly. A young man with a hard but not dissipated face, with his hat well planted on the back of his head, had followed her into the room.

THE ORANGE BLOSSOM.

A Pretty Legend Which Comes from Spain.

Like all familiar customs whose origin is lost in antiquity, the wearing of orange blossoms at a wedding is accounted for in various ways. Among other stories is the following pretty legend from Spain:

An African king presented a Spanish king with a magnificent orange tree, whose creamy, waxy blossoms and wonderful fragrance excited the admiration of the whole court. Many begged in vain for a branch of the plant, but a foreign ambassador was tormented by the desire to introduce so great a curiosity to his native land. He used every possible means, fair or foul, to accomplish his purpose, but all his efforts coming to naught, he gave up in despair.

The fair daughter of the court gardener was loved by a young artisan, but lacked the dot which the family considered necessary in a bride. One day, chancing to break off a spray of orange blossoms, the gardener thoughtlessly gave it to his daughter.

Seeing the coveted prize in the girl's hair the wily ambassador offered her a sum sufficient for the desired dowry, provided she give him the branch and say nothing about it. Her marriage was soon celebrated, and on her way to the altar, in grateful remembrance of the source of all her happiness, she secretly broke off another bit of the lucky tree to adorn her hair.

Whether the poor court gardener lost his head in consequence of his daughter's treachery the legend does not state, but many lands now know the wonderful tree, and ever since that wedding day orange blossoms have been considered a fitting adornment for a bride.—Detroit Free Press.

Tallest of All Trees.

In New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania grows a species of gum tree—Eucalyptus amygdalina is its scientific name—which, Sir F. von Mueller says, probably represents "the tallest of all trees of the globe." The loftiest specimen of this tree yet measured towers to the height of 471 feet. A prostrate tree, measured in Victoria, was 420 feet long, and the distance from the roots to the lowest branch was 255 feet. At that point the trunk was four feet in diameter and 360 feet from the butt the diameter was still three feet. The wood of the tree is hard and of good quality; it grows quickly and yields a great quantity of volatile oil from its leaves, which are very abundant.

The Youngest Was the Eldest.

A curious legal point was decided in the reign of Elizabeth—at least, so the story goes. A country gentleman bequeathed his estate to his eldest son, and ten pounds to the youngest. He had only two sons, who were twins. The first-born claimed the estate, but it seemed that he had been round the world with Drake, and so had lost a day on the voyage. Hence, the lawyers—sly rogues—assured him that his brother's claim was the best; and the adventurer acquiescing in the decision departed on his travels with the ten pounds in his pocket.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It was 300 years ago in Florence, Italy, that the first grand opera was produced.

SELECTION OF CATTLE.

A Task That Requires Rare Judgment, to Say Nothing of Years of Experience.

Perhaps never before in the history of Canada has there been such a demand for stockers as during the last year. While American buyers have taken large numbers to consume their enormous corn crops, Canadian farmers, as they are learning the art of producing cheap feed in the form of ensilage and the like, are more than formerly, anxious to secure thrifty consumers of the same. In the last year or two, many have bought stockers for the first time, and some, at least, have learned lessons upon selection of feeders that, while expensive at first, may prove profitable in the end. The great increase in dairying has led to the more general use of dairy-bred bulls, and from these hunreds of steers have been raised, and poorly raised at that. These in their second, third or fourth year, when allowed a good grass run, may be easily taken by the novice as fairly good and profitable animals to buy, especially if secured at from 2 1/2 to 3 cents per pound. Now, if such cattle are from beefy dams, says Farmers' Advocate, and have been well reared, they might return a profit for labor and cheap food consumed; but in most cases the dairy cows that are bred are not of that sort and the result is to disgust the inexperienced steer feeder with trying to make money out of beef, or else to show him the more glaring lesson, that to try to do it with the wrong type of animal was the mistake. Practical and experienced feeders, who breed or purchase steers for fattening, observe striking differences in the aptitude of animals of varying types and in such form and quality as to command the highest price on the market.

Prof. Curtiss says, in a recently issued bulletin on "Essentials in Beef Production": "It requires a well-trained eye to detect in all cases the possible variation of results in the store or stock steer; but there are some distinctions that are easily detected. There are certain types of cattle, for instance, that never feed profitably under any conditions, and it is quite as important to discriminate against these in the feed lot as to be able to recognize the excellence in other types. The accompanying illustration, Fig. 1, represents a yearling steer that combines practically all the qualities that go to make up a good feeding steer." While the actual feeding qualities of a steer in this condition are more difficult to detect than one in a better condition, still the better sort (to quote Prof. Curtiss) "presents a blocky frame and stoutness of build, accompanied by short, straight legs, wide back and loin, well-sprung ribs, fullness back of shoulders and in flank, prominent brisket, wide chest and well-rounded barrel, together with a good, soft, mellow-handling skin and fine silky hair, giving what is termed the thick, mossy coat, without coarseness, and, withal, a good strong, vigorous head, clear, full eye, and quiet temperament." Soft, mellow-will the thrifty steer of beef form coarseness in head, horn or any other part are desirable characteristics. Cheap meat, a greater percentage of offal, as well as a tendency to unthriftiness, usually accompany coarseness and a hard-handling skin. Not only will the thrifty steer of beef form make greater gains for the food consumed, but he will sell for a much better price per hundredweight when fat. This is readily understood when it is remembered that loin and rib roasts of prime quality retail for from 16 to 18 cents per pound, while flank and plate cuts sell for from two to four cents, and internal tallow for four cents per pound. It is not a matter of prejudice against this or that breed or type, when an expert buyer offers 3 1/2 cents per pound for one man's cattle, and 4 1/2 cents for another lot of no greater weight, as he values them strictly on their merits. The controlling factor is the utility and inherent value of the animal for the practical test of the butcher. So that if some of us have, perchance, remodeled our stables with the idea of feeding steers, and after a winter's feeding are almost ready to proclaim that there is "no money in beef," let us look into the cause and see whether or not we have given the matter a fair trial in the character of animals fed; and before going up, if it is necessary to purchase stockers, may we select only those which have been well reared from thrifty, beef-form parentage, and in themselves possess the characteristics indicated in the cut.

MANAGEMENT OF BEES.

Anyone May Succeed with Them by Taking Advantage of Their Weak Points.

Scarcely anyone is incapable of handling and controlling bees. It is simply a mistaken idea of some people that bees have a special dislike for them and that only certain individuals can handle bees, says A. H. Duff in the Epitomist. It is only necessary to know how to handle bees for anyone to succeed with them. To handle bees properly it is not necessary to go to war with them, but absolutely wrong. If we should undertake to fight a colony of bees into subjection the fight would continue until the last bee of the hive was dead, providing we held out that long ourselves.

Bees can only be handled successfully by kind treatment and by studying their habits and becoming well informed of their nature and mode of doing things. Anyone may succeed with them by taking advantage of their weak points. Smoke is the controlling agent to be adopted in handling bees. By smoking bees they become excited and will at once proceed to fill themselves with honey, and when thus filled are perfectly peaceable and will allow themselves to be abused, robbed and even killed without offering any resistance. The Cyprian bees are the only ones I ever had that at times would resist smoke, and in order to handle them I have used simply kind treatment and careful manipulation and fully succeeded. If we but take the time we may handle any colony of bees without the aid of smoke by careful manipulation if we get well acquainted with their nature and habits.

If you are afraid of bees you will not get along with them very well, and the greater fear the less success you will have. The fear of bee stings keeps many from engaging in bee culture. This reason to the practical apiarist appears very foolish indeed. You may say that bees sting persons whether they are afraid of them or not. This may be true to some extent, but I am satisfied that fear causes almost 90 per cent. of all stings received. Bees seem to dislike all rapid-moving objects. You may walk slowly through the apiary and not a bee will molest you, but, on the other hand, if you pass rapidly among them some of the bees are likely to follow you, and hence your actions have much to do with it.

FOR WATERING FOWLS.

A Collection of Fountains Which Altogether Represent a Cost of But a Few Cents.

A well-made watering fountain for poultry is the best arrangement for watering fowls, but these are more or less expensive. Some substitutes are shown herewith. A gallon "canned apple" can may be attached to the wall, as shown, or a lard pail may be hung upon a nail within reach of the floor. Better still is the third device, which permits water to be poured into the pail each day from the outside, and is up where the litter will not be scratched into it. Make the platform on which the pail rests broad enough so that a fowl can fly up and stand upon the edge while drinking. Where fowls and chicks run at large there can be no better drinking fountain to be placed out of doors than the familiar device of filling a tin pail, can or other vessel, according to the size desired, and inverting it over a flat dish a little larger in diameter. This supplies clean water as fast as used and cannot be soiled.—N. Y. Tribune.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

Exercise is good for egg product. Feed often and enough to be relished.

A supply of charcoal will often prevent sickness.

Eggs are flavored to a great extent by what the hens eat.

Do not compel fowls to roost in close, hot quarters during the summer.

The value of a breed depends largely upon the purpose for which it is kept.

Wood ashes scattered over the floor of the poultry house often causes sore feet.

Feed the poultry all the fattening food they will eat a few days before marketing.

With turkeys it is more important to have fresh coops each year than with chickens.

To make poultry pay have good stock and comfortable quarters and give good care.

All fowls intended to be killed for market should be given no feed for 24 hours before killing.

While nearly every breed has good merits, there is no breed that is the best in all essentials.

Late moulting weakens the constitution at a time when vigor is of the greatest importance.

When feeding grain to fowls scatter it well. This prevents greedy hens from securing more than their share and compels them all to hunt for it.

Turkeys are capable of rapid digestion and are always apparently hungry, and for this reason can rarely be kept confined to advantage.—St. Louis Republic.

Wind Won, as Usual.

There was great jubilee and there would have been feasting in Madrid had provisions been cheaper.

"Shout, stranger, shout!" urged the high-born Hidalgo. "An American town was completely destroyed!"

"Ah, by Camara's squadron?" inquired the stranger.

"Well, the information from American sources says it was destroyed by a cyclone. What that may be none of us know, but it surely means some form of Spanish power. At any rate, it was a great victory."—N. Y. World.

1498-1898. Calico's Four Hundredth Anniversary.

Calico was first manufactured in India in 1498, so that its use has been constant for more than four hundred years. William Simpson & Sons, most extensive manufacturers of this kind of goods, produce the best grade of this kind of goods, and make their prints as attractive as the colors bright, clear and lasting. Dealers as well as buyers recognize this fact, and very wisely give them preference. Ladies who have not worn them will do well to remember this, as the piece of calico which bears the ticket upon which appear the magic words "William Simpson & Sons" is not only the best that the world has produced for four hundred years, but is doubtless as good as will be made four hundred years hence.

Where Noah Kept His Bees.

Dr. James K. Hosmer, while recently visiting Boston, had occasion to visit the new public library. As he went up the steps he met Edward Everett Hale, who asked the doctor's errand.

"To consult the archives," was the reply. "By-the-way, Hosmer," said Dr. Hale, "do you know where Noah kept his bees?"

"No," answered Hosmer. "In the ark hives," said the venerable preacher as he passed out of earshot.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A DOCTOR'S DIRECTIONS.

They save a daughter from blindness.

When a father writes that yours "is the best medicine in the world," you can allow something for seeming extravagance in the statement if you know that the medicine so praised, cured a loved daughter of disease and restored to her the eyesight nearly lost. The best medicine in the world for you is the medicine that cures you. There can be anything better. No medicine can do more than cure. That is why John S. Goode, of Orrick, Mo., writes in these strong terms:

"Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine in the world. My daughter had a relapse after the measles, due to taking cold. She was nearly blind, and was obliged to remain in a dark room all the time. The doctors could give her no relief; one of them directed me to give her Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Two bottles completely cured her."

The thousands of testimonials to the value of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla repeat over and over again, in one form or another the expression: "The doctors gave her to relieve one of them directed me to give her Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Two bottles completely cured her."

It is a common experience to try Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a last resort. It is

As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. HEIGHT OF POLITENESS.

If Your Hostess Skins Her Nose It Is the Proper Cap to Skin Yours Also.

Three young women who boarded a North side cable car the other day were evidently dressed for a reception, and carried cases in their French-gloved hands. They attracted much attention, which was not surprising, as they were young and would have been handsome but for a similarity of facial misfortune—each one had a prominent nose. The women were not alone.

Fortunately for the peace of mind of the other passengers on the car, a woman—also in gala dress—knew them well enough to ask with great astonishment:

"Oh, haven't you heard? We are going to Mrs. H's reception."

"So am I. But I mean what has happened to your noses?"

"Nothing; our noses are all right. But haven't you heard about Mrs. H—?"

"Not a word," said their mystified acquaintance.

"Why, she fell off her bicycle and skinned her poor nose. The cards were out already for this reception, and she felt so badly about the line to show their sympathy by wearing the same kind of a nose in the reception."

"Oh, you sweet things! But why did you not let all her friends know? I would have been delighted to have got up my nose in the same style, but I suppose it is too late now."

They left the car together, and two women who had been listening with a lend-me-yours intensity looked at each other with untranslatable meaning as one feebly gasped:

"Well! Well! I have heard say that imitation is the sincerest flattery, but don't that beat the record?"—Chicago Chronicle.

Would Ruin His Business.

Railroad stories are all more or less pithy, especially when told by railroad men. A certain system running in the southwest is known for its slow trains from one end of the line to the other. The trains are slow enough at best, but when washouts and overflows occur, time doubles up on engineer, train crew and passengers. Not long ago a flood of complaints was poured in upon the general manager of the line from all kinds of people who travel over this system. One of them came from a prominent undertaker, somewhere in an adjacent state, and this is what he wrote:

"If you do not run faster trains over your line you will ruin my business. My customers ship the corpses over your system for fear that they will not reach their destination before the resurrection day."—St. Louis Republic.

ALL MEN LOVE BEAUTY.

Mrs. Pinkham Counsels Young Wives to Keep Their Attractiveness—A Letter From a Young Wife.

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes.

What a disappointment then to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head!

I feel as if I would like to say to every young woman who is about to be married—"Strengthen yourself in advance, so that you will not break down under the new strain on your powers."

Keep your beauty, it is a precious possession! Your husband loves your beauty, he is proud to be seen in public with you; try to keep it for his sake, and your own.

The pale cheeks, the dark shadows under the eyes, the general drooping of the young wife's form, what do they mean? They mean that her nerves are failing, that her strength is going and that something must be done to help her through the coming trials of maternity.

Build her up at once by a course of some tonic with specific powers. Such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You can get it at any druggist's.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife—of her own accord she addresses it to her "suffering sisters," and while from modesty she asks to withhold her name, she gives her initials and street number in Chambersburg, Pa., so she can easily be found personally or by letter:

To my Suffering Sisters:—Let me write this for your benefit, telling you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I am but nineteen and suffered with painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, dizziness, burning sensation back of ears and on top of my head, nervousness, pain and soreness of muscles, bearing-down pains, could not sleep well, was unable to stand without pain, and oh! how I longed to be well!

One day I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham telling her all, knowing I could do so in perfect confidence.

She wrote me a lovely letter in reply, telling me exactly what to do. After taking nine bottles of the Compound, one box of Liver Pills, and using one-half package of Sanative Wash, I can say I am cured. I am so happy, and owe my happiness to none other than Mrs. Pinkham.

Why will women suffer when help is near? Let me, as one who has had experience, urge all suffering women, especially young wives, to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice.—Mrs. R. S. R., 113 E. Catherine St., Chambersburg, Pa.

Glass Weaving.

The key to the process of making glass curtains, in connection with knit material, consists in operating particular needles of the machine at the right time and allowing others to remain idle, for which purpose a set of chain bars is used, so arranged as to render it possible to command the different needles according to the needs of the process. A chain is made up of bars, links and balls, like those used on the loom for weaving cloth, and there is a lever attached to the shoulder of each needle and extending from the part where the goods circle the needles down to the first bar of the chain, the latter resting in bearings. On the turning of a crank connecting beveled gears motion is imparted through the agency of an upright shaft to the chain cylinder, and every time the yarn is delivered to the needles a revolution is made, the chain bar cylinder presenting a new bar to the levers of the needles, and whenever a ball on the bar contacts on the lever the needle to which it belongs is pushed forward and a mechanical device causes the needle to operate and form loops, thus knitting. There are, however, blanks on some of the bars, and when these blanks connect with the levers of the needles no movement is made.—Upholsterer.

Plant Propagation.

Some very curious processes for propagation are practiced at the public gardens. One consists in cutting with a knife a ring around a branch of a plant. One might imagine that the intention was to kill the branch, but such is by no means the object in view. The cut having been made, a piece of wet moss is wrapped and tied around the branch at that point. Beneath this protection the sap exudes from the wound, and little rootlets are developed. After a few days the branch is cut away from the parent stem, being then itself a complete plant, with roots, all ready to put in a pot. This plan is adopted with plants of slow growth, because one plant may thus be split up into half a dozen or more of good size, instead of waiting for a seedling or little slip to develop.—Washington Star.

Insulted.

An American traveler relates that, alighting at a hotel in Granada, a man at the door put out his hand toward him. The traveler supposed that the man was the porter of the hotel and offered him his valise. The man stepped back, tossed his head and frowned scornfully. "Caramba!" he exclaimed. "Do you take me for a porter? I would have you understand that I am no porter." "Indeed? Then may I ask you, sir, what you are?" "I am a beggar, sir, and asked you for alms"—San Francisco Argonaut.

WINE OF CARDUI
THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN USED to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. L. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."
